Project Description:

The Children's Institute is a school for children suffering from autism and development disabilities located in a former office building in the Townships of Verona and Montclair. The school was seeking to expand their programs and to separate elementary school programs from high school programs. Along with these building expansions, they were seeking to improve and reorganize their on-site circulation as well as expand their parking facilities. A critical element of this design was the need to accommodate the school bus activity that is generated at this facility from the various school districts that send students to The Children's Institute. The site is also located adjacent to Bloomfield Avenue and traffic impacts of the proposed expansion also required careful consideration.
